Quotes from Bronze Age Mindset “Among your instincts you will find the longing for strong friendships, that the modern evil tries to snuff out. And they have good reason to try this, because every great thing in the past was done through strong friendships between two men, or brotherhoods of men, and this includes all great political things, all acts of political freedom and power.

Bronze Age Mindset is, fundamentally, a gospel of sun and steel (a phrase BAP borrows from Yukio Mishima’s autobiographical essay; Mishima is one of few people who BAP seems to take as a role model), but to what end? BAP answers this question in Chapter 15: he seeks “the life of the immortal gods who live in pure mountain air, and the sign of this life, where energy is marshaled to the production of higher order, is the aesthetic physique, the body in its glorious and divine beauty.

Wat iz Bronze Age Mindset? - The American Mind

Bronze-Age Mindset is, in my opinion, actually on par with the great German philosopher himself – in style, in insight, in style of insight, and in nature: both Mycenaean Greeks born out of time and place. BAP touches on all sorts of subjects relative to the modern age, but his central thesis can be summarized fairly simply.

Review: Bronze-Age Mindset – Caffeine & Philosophy

Bronze Age Mindset is not book for our age. It is bridge, from forgotten past to inevitable future, reminder that our dark time is but fleeting transition, a lacuna of no consequence between the times of great beasts of the spirit, who have stalked the Earth before and shall make Earth their hunting ground again.

vitalism. It's a glorification of power, ascending, expanding, carefree, mocking, violent life. But despite being the opposite, it makes the same mistakes as stoicism. Both outlooks indulge heavily in the naturalistic fallacy. Stoicism views nature as indifferent and cold, and so prescribes that we also make ourselves indifferent and cold in order to best endure and navigate life.
