The BSA manual specifies an end gap of .009" (minimum) .013" (maximum). If the end gap is .007" or less, the ends must be filed carefully to obtain the correct minimum gap. When refitting the piston to the conrod it is most important to have the piston ring gaps at the front, ie numbers one and three will appear nearest the front on the nearside of the engine, as below:

The engine proved itself, and with small motorcycles becoming ever more popular in Britain, BSA decided to build a complete motorcycle around the D1 engine. In October 1948 the BSA Bantam was released, the bike had telescopic forks, a rigid rear end, direct electrics, shovel front-mudguard and fishtail silencer.

BSA A1's tips were very good and are all you need if you do not want to spend, spend, spend. One further tip is that you cannot put material back on if you take too much off. BSA's only concession to performance improvement before the D10 and later range was the introduction of optional close ratio gears. I think George Todd also made them as well.
