Click the heart to show your love. Johnson & Johnson started producing first aid kits in 1888 for railroad workers who needed quick and easy access to basic medical supplies. Over time, the company manufactured bespoke kits for everyone from factory workers to soldiers—and even the Boy Scouts of America. The original 1925 Boy Scout first aid kits were pretty basic: They included a triangular bandage that could be fashioned into a sling, a compress and two safety pins that were packaged in ...
