Objective Saint-Lo: 7 June 1944 - 18 July 1944 by Georges...
Objective Saint-Lo: 7 June 1944-18 July 1944, Georges Bernage The town of Saint-Lo was one of the two major American objectives in the period immediately after D-Day. While the right wing of the US Army pushed into the Cotentin and up to Cherbourg, the left wing attempted to advance south towards the important road junction at Saint-Lo, which was expected to be the starting point for the breakout from Normandy.

Objective Saint-Lo: 7 June 1944-18 July 1944, Georges Bernage
The battle of Saint-Lo (7-19 July 1944) was an essential preliminary to the eventual American breakout from Normandy, and saw them struggle through the bocage country to reach the starting point for Operation Cobra. After the initial D-Day landings the first main American Overlord objective was to clear out the Cotentin Peninsula, to the west of the beaches, and take the port of Cherbourg to the north.

Objective Saint-Lo - Casemate Publishers
The Battle of Saint-Lô is one of the three conflicts in the Battle of the Hedgerows, which took place between July 7–19, 1944, just before Operation Cobra. Saint-Lô had fallen to Germany in 1940, and, after the Invasion of Normandy, the Americans targeted the city, as it served as a strategic crossroads. American bombardments caused heavy damage and a high number of casualties, which resulted in the martyry city being called "The Capital of Ruins", popularized in a report by Samuel Beckett.
