The debate on the merits of converting a Tiptronic Porsche 911 to manual has been discussed many times. One of the reasons was the large percentage of Tiptronics that were actually produced. It feels wonderfully smooth when Alpine touring with the mrs or carrying the kids around, but when you're on your own and looking for fun, a manual gearbox will do it better.

Tiptronic's issues were also well documented, being hugely more expensive than the manual ($2950 extra in 1990), 1,3 seconds slower to 60mph than the manual in the case of the 964 911, and needed to be carefully learnt to attain the most from it.

Porsche's double clutch (which is quite literally what "doppelkupplung" translates to) gearbox can switch gears in less than 100 milliseconds. Just under $60,000 is the asking price, which is steep for a Tiptronic car. North of $50,000 buys you a ton of very nice 996 Turbos with 6-speed gearbox, so you basically have to be in love with this spec to pony up 60 large. It is hard to argue that this isn't worth a premium given the spec, but that gearbox is just the elephant in the room.
