The literature indicates that the spirit had two functions: purification and prophetic (inspiration). He then approaches three of the Gospels (Matt., Mark, and John) and Acts with the two distinct functions. The role of the Holy Spirit in the Gospels was to indicate that Jesus was the purifier of the Jewish faith and the inspired word of God.

Summary and Analysis The Synoptic Gospels and Acts. The earliest Christians did not have any written records of the life and teachings of Jesus. During the course of Jesus' public ministry, no one felt the need to make a written account of what Jesus did or what he said. Those who were close to him could pass to others what they remembered about him.
