Obviously, doing a straightforward adaptation of "The Monster at the End of This Book" would be repetitive and, well... short. And while it is faithful to the book in some ways, in order to pad the story out for half an hour, our hero Grover is joined by Elmo, as well as his pals Cookie Monster, Rosita, and Abby Cadabby as they discuss how they get through their fears and anxieties.

The Monster at the End of this Story will exceed expectations and delight kids. Grown-ups can put aside their own fears that this special would be a obvious attempt to squeeze 30 minutes of material from an excellent children's book. While it still has a lot of silly stuff preschoolers love, the social emotional lessons featured in this version ...

~~The Monster at the End of This Story TV Review~~

The title of this episode references the Sesame Street book There's A Monster At The End Of This Book. In the book, Grover tries to stop the reader from reaching the end of the book and encountering the monster. On the last page he discovers that the monster is him. Both the episode and book break the fourth wall in this regard.

~~Anthrax — Monster At The End Lyrics | AZLyrics.com~~

Grover tries to stop you from turning each page to delay reaching the monster at the end of the book. Typical Grover humour. It makes kids laugh while giving them (at least the first time) a little thrill about what might be at the end. It's not scary. It's Grover! And it's short, making it a favourite bedtime book.
